It all began in 1896. Emile Moench, a Young Frenchman, apprenticed to a Baker in Vienna, discovered that his Boss used Baking Powder instead of Baker's Yeast to make his Brioches rise...

Returning to France, he settled with his Young Wife in a Small Village: Igney- Avricourt and began making this Famous Baking Powder in its Pink Sachet in his Cellar. Marketing is then ensured by the Village Priest!

In 1897, Emile founded the Alsa Company and settled in Nancy. His Wife, Elisabeth, an Energetic and Hard-Working Woman, dreamed one day of an Alsatian Woman wearing a Bonnet alongside a Stork, and from then on the Pink Bags took an Alsatian Woman as their Emblem.

Year after Year, the Alsa Range grew and from 1930 offered Dessert Preparations including the Famous Flan Alsa. Emile and Elisabeth work with their Sons Paul and Christian. Elisabeth supervises Work in the Factory. Paul manages the Business with his Father. Christian is passionate about Aviation, he named his Plane Alsa and made the Brand known throughout the World.

In 1936, Emile Moench launched his Book "280 Alsa Pastry Recipes". He will be the First Publisher of Pre-War Recipe Books. This Book will be distributed until 1958 in Several Million Copies.

In 1948, the Little Pink Sachet invaded France, thus placing Alsa as the Undisputed Leader in the Baking Powder Market. Already recognized as a Brand of Sharing and Tradition, Alsa has won the Support of Consumers who continue to greedily consume its Tasty Recipes.

In 1972, True to its Origins, the Alsa Production Site moved to Brand New Premises in the Center of Nancy in its Nearby Suburbs (Ludres). A Research and Development Center is associated with the Production Site, where Pastry Chefs design the Desserts of Tomorrow. Renowned for its Know-How, the Brand favors Simplicity and a Guarantee of Success: for Certain Products, all you need to do is add Milk or Eggs.
